

California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) Policy

PURPOSE

It is the policy of Summit State Bank (Bank) to comply with the requirements of the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) that became effective January 1, 2020. CCPA gives consumers more control over the personal information that businesses collect about them and the CCPA regulations provide guidance on how to implement the law. CCPA does not apply to personal information collected, processed, sold, shared, or disclosed by financial institutions pursuant to federal law as it pertains to the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), the California Financial Information Privacy Act (CFIPA) and implementing regulations.

BACKGROUND

The California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), enacted in 2018 and effective January 1, 2020, created new consumer rights relating to the access to, deletion of, and sharing of personal information that is collected by businesses. Compliance with CCPA was required by July 1, 2020.

In November of 2020, California voters approved Proposition 24, California Privacy Rights Act (CPRA), which amended the CCPA and added new additional privacy protections that began on January 1, 2023.

DEFINITIONS UNDER CCPA

“Consumer” is every individual in California for other than a temporary or transitory purpose, and every individual who is domiciled in California who is outside the State for a temporary or transitory purpose.

“Personal information” is any information that “identifies, relates to, describes, is capable of being associated with, or could reasonably be linked, directly or indirectly, with a particular consumer or household.” This definition includes not only common identifiers, such as a name, address, and social security number, but other information such as purchasing history or tendencies, biometric information, internet activity, geolocation data, employment information, and education information, among other things. It does not, however, include publicly available information or deidentified or aggregate consumer information.

RESPONSIBILITY

The Bank is responsible for implementing a policy to comply with the California Consumer Privacy Act. The Bank’s CCPA policy must disclose specific business practices, such as a description of a consumer’s rights under CCPA, how they can submit requests for disclosure, deletion, and opting-out of the sale of personal information, and additional information regarding their data collection and sharing practices. All employees of Summit State Bank must comply with the terms of this policy. Periodic training will be implemented, on an as needed basis, for all individuals responsible for handling such consumer requests. This training will make sure that those individuals are informed of the requirements of the Bank’s CCPA policy and how to direct consumers to exercise their rights under the CCPA.
